EAST TROPIC COAST

up and the pandemonium raged wilder, as Boston welcomed its namesake of the air.

Another splash half a minute after the Boston II, and then, back it Nelson in the New Orleans had reached home.

High above, the planes that had carried the welcoming escort up the coast of Maine and back again in the trial of the aerial globe-trotters, turned and flew down and spun wildly down toward the earth, only to right again and climb once more into the heavens for other sights.

The colorful quill that Boston waterfront was having its gala day—

WAGON SALUTE.

Whistles of steamboats along the shores rent the air, while in factories on the land, the engineers tied the whistle down with the sars of spectators' rage.

Then, once after the other, came twenty-one earth-rocking explosions—the firing of guns in a salute as ardently given as to dignitary of a nation lower than that of the fliers.

It was a signal tripping to the aerial armory who traveled back in almost every mile of the thousands they traversed, to bring glory to the United States.

The fliers, brought off from Mer Point at 12:07 p. m., daylight saving time, arriving at the Boston Airport at 1:30 p. m., but they did not descend until several minutes before midnight in the harbor.

The 12:00-minute jump from the time they took the air to the time they last plane alighted was two hours and three minutes.

Three city streets, each escorted by a down land planes circled round the harbor like giant birds. On land and among the harbor craft, the American flag was seen from the moment the fliers landed.

As the fliers landed to their official baggage at the airport, the official baggage, and aircraft guns fired by Battery A, Ninth Regiment, Artillery Corps, behind the salute of 11 guns.

Major-General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the United States Service, came a few minutes before the world fliers and was rushed to the official reception barge with assistant secretary of War Dwight F. Davis, there to greet the fliers.

The planes landed easily to their moorings and were then the naval launch went on to meet them.

BROADCASTS HELLO.

The six fliers stepped from the launch into the reception barge at 2:40 p. m. Major-General Patrick was at the water's edge to meet the "boys." He greeted Lieutenant Smith by the hand and then led the fliers up the steps to introduce them to the receiving committee.

Before the introduction, Lieutenant Smith took a photograph from the hand of a broadcaster and said, while his mother listened in at home, "Hello, folks. We are glad to be with you again."

General Patrick then introduced the fliers to the dignitaries with the words:

"It gives me the greatest pleasure to introduce the men who made the first air flight around the world."

Six minutes after their arrival on the barge the fliers, feet upon the land of the Boston Airport, they started to walk off the barge, there was an affecting scene as the fliers, Nelson, who had flown here.

SCENE AT FLYING FIELD WITH RECORD THRONG ASSEMBLED TO WELCOME FLIERS

Bands and aerial salute by navy aviators kept the immense crowd glued around the long vigil for the during airmen who were flown around the globe and were expected to make their first landing on United States soil in Boston. (Continued from page 1)

Mothers of Fliers Wire "God Bless You" to Sons

More Point, Me., Sept. 6.—(A.P.)—The first written greetings received by the world fliers at this place were from the mothers of Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith and Lieutenant John Harding.

The message of thankfulness for their safe arrival was given the officers here by the Associated Press, to which the mothers of the army aviators had entrusted the delivery.

The greetings sent by wire from San Francisco, where it was signed by Mrs. Maude Smith and Mrs. Robert A. Chase Harding, follow:

"We, two of the happiest mothers in all the world today, how our hearts in reverence to our precious boys and their comrades to safety this far. Our hearts overflow with joy and gratitude. May God still bless you and may you take you in our arms. Because we love you, we love you, we love you."

wordward. They brought the greetings of Dayton to the fliers.

City, state and national dignitaries also were on the official barge to greet the fliers. The list included Mayor George W. Brewster, commander of the First Corps Area; Rear Admiral T. P. Magruder, commanding the Naval district; and the world fliers, Rear Admiral L. R. Dettinger, commander of the Charleston Navy Yard; Governor Channing H. Cox of Massachusetts; Mayor James M. Carter of Boston; and Brigadier General Mark L. Hersey.

HOPE OFF AT 12:07.

The fliers hoped off at 12:07 p. m. in daylight saving time. Weather conditions were almost perfect for the 12-mile jump to Boston.

The world cruises skinned across the Atlantic Bay between Mer Point and Flying Point to get their speed. The Chicago, with Flight Commander Smith on the control, was in the van with the New Orleans, under Lieutenant Nelson, second, and the Boston, Lieutenant Leigh Wade third.

The New Orleans, however, got flying speed first and took the air at 12:07 p. m. with the Chicago's position they were two seconds later, and the Boston was in the air in the next breath.

WAVES FAREWELL.

Lieutenant Smith turned his head and his hand as he left, with a farewell to the folks that he said had made the fliers' emergency landing one of the most comfortable stops of the world's worst cruise of five months.

Through the long delay of waiting for gasoline supplies at this anchorage, the fliers had kept their feet.

Around them was a throng of power yachts and rowboats, and along the shore was an audience gathered from all points of the bay when the world went out that the fliers were being welcomed.

The fliers went away from here in a three-part formation. Under Lieutenant Smith in the lead, followed by the New Orleans, under Lieutenant Nelson, second, and the Boston, Lieutenant Leigh Wade third.

The flight had been delayed at Mer Point by a shortage of taking on more gasoline, which was brought from Bath after considerable loss of time.

Major-General Patrick and the other officials in the great squadron of eleven planes from Boston, which circled the world cruises, giving them the first honors of the air.

Smith's Own Story of Flight Down Coast

By LIEUT. LOWELL H. SMITH, Commander of U. S. Round-the-World Flight

(Copyright by Universal Service) More Point, Me., Sept. 6.—We're back. It's good to plant our feet on United States soil again.

We ran into fog most of the way, and then we went up and got out the coast of Maine. When we reached Casco Bay it was done. We hoped we could feel our way out a little further along, perhaps to find clear weather. We were very anxious to get into Boston on scheduled time.

It couldn't be done, we found, so we looked around for a landing place. After circling around the bay for a while we discovered a good place near Mer Point. We made an easy landing at 2:10 p. m., daylight saving time, and anchored as near shore as we had time to do in getting to dry land.

It was our first actual touch of United States soil since we left Seattle. We certainly are all very, very glad to be back. It seems good to be back with our kind once more. I hope we will be able to hop for Boston at 9 or 10 o'clock to day.

We went over our motors for an hour or after we came down. The fliers wouldn't have landed, but the fog was so thick we had to skid the wheels on the water.

The cottagers here who welcomed us back to our country have been fine to us. Down the strait, they gave us a real old-fashioned Maine dinner at New Meadows Inn. Believe me, it tasted great. We had fried clams, broiled fish lobster and everything that goes in heaven's kitchen. I haven't tasted anything like that for ages. FLIERS MEET BY ESCORT OF PLANES

Chief Patrick Leads Fleet to Meet and Stand by the Returning Team

Commanded by Major-General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the air service, twelve planes headed off to the northward from the airport at East Boston today to greet the round-the-world fliers.

Disappointed yesterday, the crowd gathered slowly today. Those who arrived early lined up along the ropes on the inner field.

The field was still wet and muddy and automobiles had a hard time of it. In Wood Island Park and along the South Boston waterfront the unofficial welcoming delegations began mustering shortly after 8 o'clock.

Early today a new explanation of the forced descent of the fliers in Casco Bay last night went into circulation.

It was to the effect that Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith's plane, the Chicago, was compelled to go down for want of fuel.

The decision of Smith, the flight commander, to stop at St. John, N. B., was responsible for the forced descent of the fliers in Casco Bay last night went into circulation.

COS OFF, S. S. COURTS, SAYS COLLIDGE

President in Lafayette Day Speech Insists the Judiciary Be Let Alone

There is no real independence save only as we secure it through the law of service.

While availing ourselves, he pointed out that the United States had pursued that policy in contributions to foreign charities in connection with the celebration of Lafayette Day in America; in adjustment of war problems in Europe; in the Washington armament conference and in the settlement of the reparations problem.

The effect these will have in averting war and promoting peace, he added, "cannot possibly be overestimated. They appear to me properly to mark the end of the old era, and the beginning of a new one. We hope they are the end of aggressive war and the beginning of permanent peace."

U. S. COURT IMPARTIAL

Speaking again of the Supreme Court as well as of the entire system of independent judiciary, Mr. Collidge said that the establishment through the constitution was "one of the great contributions which America made to the science of government."

"That tribunal," he continued in speaking specifically of the Supreme Court, "has been made independent and impartial as human nature could devise. This action was taken with the sole purpose of protecting the freedom of the individual, of safeguarding his liberties, and of insuring the maintenance of the law."

It is frequently charged that this tribunal is tyrannical. If the constitution of the United States be taken as the basis, that charge is unfounded. It is the duty of the courts to interpret the law, and to see that the rights of the citizen are not infringed. It is the duty of the courts to see that the law is not made a mere instrument of power, but that it is a shield for the weak against the strong.

"Otherwise it is exercising the power of government for the preservation of liberty. The fact is that the constitution is the foundation of our government, and the courts are the guardians of its principles. It is the duty of the courts to see that the law is not made a mere instrument of power, but that it is a shield for the weak against the strong."

HOUSE IS PARTISAN

It is well known that when the House of Representatives sits as a judicial body to determine contested elections, it has a tendency to decide in a partisan way.

It is to be remembered also that under recent political practice there is a strong tendency for legislators to be very much influenced by party executive. Whether we like this practice or not, there is no use denying that it exists. With a party executive and a subservient legislature, the opportunity would be very inviting to aggrandizement and very dangerous to liberty. That leads toward imperialism.

"Some people do not seem to understand fully the purpose of our constitutional structure. They are not for protecting the majority, either in or out of the Congress. They can protect themselves with their votes."

We have adopted a written constitution in order that the majority, even down to the most insignificant individual, might have their rights protected.

PRESERVE ONE'S RIGHTS

"So long as our Constitution remains in force, no majority, no matter how large, can deprive the individual of the right of life, liberty or property, or of the right of free speech or of the freedom of speech or of the press."

If the authority now vested in the Supreme Court were transferred to the Congress, any majority, no matter what their motive could vote away any of these most precious rights.

"Majorities are notoriously irresponsible. After irreparable damage had been done the only remedy that

Spanish Nobility to Be Present at Mrs. Brown's Newport Dance

By BETTY ALDEN

MRS. JOHN NICHOLAS BROWN, who resided in Boston during her son's career at Harvard, is giving a dinner tomorrow evening at "Harbour Court," her Newport place.

The affair, to which twenty-four guests have been invited, is in honor of the Duke and Duchess of Alba. This titled couple, who are personal representatives of the King of Spain, will be Mrs. Brown's guests following the all-encompassing polo matches at Meadow Brook.

Mrs. Brown's son, John Nicholas Brown, received sheepskins from Harvard with the class of '22. Despite the fact that young Brown has been blessed with a staggering amount of worldly goods, he frequently referred to as the richest young man in the world—he proved himself to be a "regular fellow" while at Harvard and won high academic honors in the bargain.

A PROPOS OF DISTINGUISHED VISITORS

Considerable furor is being caused by the dance taking place tonight at "Harbour Hill," the Clarence Mackay estate near Rock, N. J.

For the guest of honor on this occasion is the Prince of Wales. A dance floor to accommodate several hundred guests has been erected on the lawn at "Harbour Hill," and, in addition to the street car double-deckers, there are also a number of the carriages of all their matters sit-spraying at just their normal rate.

On Wednesday the royal visitor attended the dinner at the Phipps Hotel, a rather informal affair presided over by the officers of the club. At the dinner was Quincy A. Shaw of Boston.

There was no special table for the Prince and the decorations were quite simple. So that the heir to the British throne probably enjoyed all the more the lobster à la Newburg and the superb chicken which constituted the main dishes of the "strictly American" menu.

During his flittings about Long Island the Prince spent steadily to the most informal of affairs. On other days he appeared dressed in a gray checkered suit with all woolen socks and tan shoes, a dotted tie and a soft felt hat.

TO RETURN TO AFFAIRS NEARER HOME

A number of guests have gone down from Boston to Wynnau for the wedding today of Miss Theodora Hill and Herbert Wells Hill.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Hill of No. 323 Beacon street, whose summer home is at Wynnau. Her only son, Mr. Joseph Hill, Jr., a few months ago, Little Miss Hill is seen here as she took part in a recent North Shore charity fete.

John Nicholas Brown, son of Mrs. Brown, who is giving the dinner at Harbour Court.

FUTURE DEBUTANTE

When Miss Nancy Letier of Beverly Farms and Washington is old enough, she may very likely be presented at the British court, as was her mother, Mrs. Joseph Letier, just a few months ago. Little Miss Letier is seen here as she took part in a recent North Shore charity fete.

SOCIETY NEWS

MR. AND MRS. AUGUSTUS HENNINGWAY KURTIS (Elizabeth Bowditch) are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, born to them at Phillips House a few days ago. Mr. and Mrs. Henningway were married in Milton last October.

The Misses Ruth and Esther Sears, daughters of Dr. and Mrs. George Sears of Beacon street and Cohasset, won the women's sailing championship held earlier in the week at Hull. The Misses Sears, who are sailing for the Cohasset Yacht Club, were presented with the Hodder Cup.

Mrs. George D. Yeomans of New York and her daughter, the Misses Mary and Georgette Yeomans, have motored from their summer place at Plymouth, Mass., to attend the international polo matches opening at Meadow Brook today.

Bruce Crane, the young son of Mr. W. Murray Crane of Dalton, has a broken wrist, the accident occurring while he was cranking a motorboat.

Mrs. Redington Pike, Jr., of Boston, formerly Miss Juliette Loup, fellow of New York, will be a bridesmaid at the marriage of Miss Katherine J. Blackwell and Frederic A. Cammann, both of Gotham. The wedding takes place October 1 in the Church of the Heavenly Rest.

Dr. and Mrs. D. Hunter McAlpin gave another of their frequent dinner parties at their summer home at Seal Harbor, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Crane, Jr., will keep open their Ipswich house, known as "Castle Hill," until very late in the season.

SERVANT GIRL KILLS RICH MAN AND SELF

London, Sept. 5 (H.N.S.)—A tragedy involving both extremes of society was revealed today when the body of a rich society man was found hidden under the stairs of a girl servant in Battersea. The man, who was 40 years old, had been recently retained as a director of one of the big department stores. The girl was 20 years old and recently five, a pretty domestic. Police found letters indicating she shot Joseph, then killed herself, thus revealing their romance.

SPANISH PREMIER TAKES COMMAND AT MOROCCO

Madrid, Sept. 6 (A.P.)—General Rivera, Premier and head of the military forces of Spain, is on his way to Morocco to end personal chicanery in the military operations against the rebellious Moroccan. Notwithstanding heavy losses the rebels are reportedly attacking the Spanish positions.

ALL RIGHTS TO CITIZENS

Attacks Religious Intolerance, but Does Not Mention Klan in Speech From New Haven

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 6 (H.N.S.)—A declaration for religious freedom and a pledge to guarantee all constitutional liberties featured the entry of John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee into the grand hall of the West. Davis flayed a "set of men" who attempted to deprive American citizens of their religious freedom but made no mention of the K. K. K. by name. He pledged himself to safeguard every citizen's rights if elected.

The candidate delivered this in his opening message in a speech from a platform of his special train at Dubuque, Ia., enroute here from Chicago.

"When the Constitution of the United States was written we gave to the Americans of that day and all who might come after them certain fundamental rights that could never be taken away," Davis declared.

"We gave them freedom of speech, freedom of assembly, freedom of the person. We gave them what was no more than the right to be free from religious persecution, not to be disturbed or threatened or taken away by any set of men or any government."

DANIEL J. KANE GIVEN SEND-OFF BY ELKS

When the liner Samara sailed today for Queenstown and Liverpool, a large delegation of Elks was in the pier to greet Daniel J. Kane, exalted ruler of Boston lodge on a vacation trip abroad.

A record for a flying trip was made by Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Taylor of Johannesburg, South Africa, who were among the passengers. They are finishing a 20,000-mile voyage made to spend one week in America. Last Saturday they arrived on the Samara, spending the week in business trips to New York, Philadelphia and parts of Greater Boston.

CHAIRMAN WHEELER IN CONNECTICUT

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 6 (H.N.S.)—Senator Burton K. Wheeler, candidate for the vice-presidency on the La Follette ticket, closed his New England campaign with a fiery speech to an enthusiastic audience here. He is today on his way to Pennsylvania to make two speeches.

After an automobile trip through Connecticut, in which he made five addresses, Wheeler in his speech here flayed President Coolidge and the Republican and Democratic parties for being "dominated completely by Wall street and the predatory interests."

As Wheeler entered the hall, the audience arose and cheered him lustily for several minutes. It was the most enthusiastic demonstration he has received anywhere in New England.

Most of his Connecticut trip was made in a driving rain storm that tended to keep down the size but not the enthusiasm of his audience. In Bridgeport, more than 300 persons stood in the rain to greet him. He was accompanied by both his wife and his presidential candidate.

At Hartford, he addressed the State convention of the American Federation of Labor, which shortly before had voted, 82 to 22 to support the La Follette-Wheeler ticket.

"A vote for President Coolidge or for John W. Davis is a vote against organized labor," Wheeler told the convention. "Both candidates are nominated by the same mammoth business interests."

N. J. LABOR PLEDGES SUPPORT TO DEMOCRATS

Lincoln, N. J., Sept. 6 (A.P.)—Full support to the Democratic ticket was pledged by the Central Labor Union of Jersey City, N. J., representing the local unions in that State with a vote of 2,000. Governor Bryan, Democratic Vice-Presidential candidate, was informed of the vote today from Richard Costello, secretary of the union. The Democratic party, the letter said, is "pledged as the only properly organized labor body through which organized labor can accomplish the legislative aims of the working man."

PRIZE PLAYS RUN TO TWO LANGUAGES

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

PRIZE plays, highly recommended by professors of the drama and deep students of literature, have frequently wobbled and sometimes completely collapsed when stacked up against the crude problem, enticing the American dollar—on two, or three—into the grasping box office. Constructive excellence in play building has not always earned its deserved reward, though goodness knows what might happen to the theatre if now and then some genius in theatrical effect and dramatic novelty did not pry his way into the modern playhouse with something more than drizzling hogwash and the old familiar humbug. Prize plays may not always make money but they most emphatically do represent a forward movement in the theatre.

"Hell Bent For Heaven" at the Hollis plays the best play of the year. If you can take strong language and a ranting religious fanatic without equipping this play will convince you that not only does the theatre have an occasional meritorious product of sufficient power to entertain and hold sustained interest, but also that a straightforward drama concerning common people who do natural things in a natural way fares brilliantly in comparison with the custom made comedies of the period. We believe in prize plays because, on the whole, they are a good thing for the theatre generally. Even a poor prize play may have its place in the theatrical scheme of things, for it encourages an art that draws reaction from perhaps a greater number of people than any other. Even so astute a manager as John Golden must believe this, for he is launching a nation-wide play contest that should be worth millions to the Standard Oil company in midsize consumption of its popular product.

THE quality that lifts "Hell Bent For Heaven" into high favor is not so much its completeness in construction but in the adroit assembling of intensely human characters who do interesting things. If you cannot be made to believe in the sincerity of some of Fletcher's people, at least, give you a taste of the thrill that always is found in good melodrama. And when there is good melodrama there is always good entertainment. Mr. Hughes has been to see everybody that he intended to see on stage when he made his central character such an impossible personage in these calculating days of sin and take. He says that he wanted to present a character that was capable of coping with his environment—irresponsible through physical and mental inferiority. He did just that job with smashing results and with a flow of language that must have shocked even the imperious Mr. Casey, who officially sees to it that the debauched Bostonian is not damaged, or even misled by words that should be left unspoken.

ROUGH men and women who inhabit rough lands do not converse in the language of Louisa Square; their habits are more or less primal because of circumstance and because their characters could not waver a living out of such regions. That accounts for the color in "Hell Bent For Heaven"—and it accounts for a lot of the extraordinary plain talk that fills a good play, anyway. You know that because it drew the Pulitzer prize against a heavy field of successful plays. Even more important than that, however, is the plain but highly illuminating fact that it is a real good entertainment, packed with thrills that tighten an audience, and blessed with really not found in popular jobbooks. It is easy to understand why "Hell Bent For Heaven" picked the Pulitzer prize. It probably deserved it.

Now He's Got a Wife—and Spurns the Theatre

Odd letters reach all theatrical producers, and many delightful moments for any one with a sense of humor are found in the daily mail. William Harris, Jr., who is presenting "The Outsider" at the Plymouth, has a letter that is known what is the matter with the show business. Not that there is anything the matter with it, but the question is always being asked and answered. The editor of "The Boston Herald" has a letter written by a man whose name appears on the list of persons who have been in the habit of buying first night seats for Mr. Harris's premiere in New York. The letter says:

"Dear Sir:—I shall appreciate it if you will take my name off your mailing list as I am now married and not interested in play openings."

Actress Invests Savings in Muskrat Marsh

Most actresses are on the lookout for good things in which to invest their savings and are interested in some odd sorts of enterprises, but Helen Eley, prima-donna of "Mr. Battling Butler" coming to the Majestic, is interested in muskrats. She and her brother are owners of one of three muskrats a short distance from Cambridge, N. Y., and they have a half interest in one at Dorchester, Mass.

Violent Reming Famous As Child Actress

Child actresses of note sometimes follow a hard road in the quest of artistic honors in matters not always wise. Violet Reming, who is coming to the Plymouth in the Plymouth 15th in the lead, is a girl of considerable experience. In her early years when American playgoers first took an interest in her, she was still in the habit of buying first night seats for Mr. Harris's premiere in New York. The letter says:

"Dear Sir:—I shall appreciate it if you will take my name off your mailing list as I am now married and not interested in play openings."

"Innocent Eyes" Newest Winter Garden Show

"Innocent Eyes," the new New York Winter Garden revue which opens the Winter season of the Shubert Theatre on Monday, September 15, is the thirty-seventh production that famous theatre. Beginning with the "Famous Show of 1912," there have been twelve productions in that series. Others were "Cora Violeta," "Whirl of Society," "Broadway to Paris," "Honeycomb Express," "Whirl of the World," "Maid in America," "The Treasure Seekers," "Hanging Around," "World of Pleasure," "Snow of Wonders," "Robinson Crusoe, Jr.," "Children on Broadway," "Monte Cristo," "Gilded," "Broadway Boulevard," "Whirl of New York," "Midnight Rendezvous," "Rombo," "Make it Happen," "Sign of the Cross," "The Dancing Girl," "Greenwich Village," "Dignity of 1912," "Artists and Models," and "Tomb Raider Eyes."

General Dawes Composes Melody for Sousa

One of the features of the program of the two concerts by Sousa and his band to be given in Symphony Hall Sunday afternoon and evening, September 21, is a "Maid in America," written by General Charles G. Dawes, the Republican candidate for the Vice Presidency. The composition will be presented as a band arrangement, and the scoring of it for more than one hundred instruments was done by Sousa himself in the musical value of the piece, there is no question.

DeWolf Hopper Looks Back on Long Stage Career

No actor of the present or past has been so closely identified with light opera as DeWolf Hopper.

who is to appear here with his comic opera organization at the Boston Opera House on Saturday, September 13, in "The Mikado."

DeWolf Hopper has been on the stage almost since boyhood. He made his first appearance in 1875 in a piece called "Our Boys."

His first appearance as a star was in 1899 in Philadelphia in "Charles in the Air."

and for thirty-two years he has continued before the public in a stellar capacity.

HERE IS COMPOSER OF MASSACHUSETTS PRIDE

Mrs. Beulah K. Doherty has shown it is possible to write music that extols the merits of the old Bay State. Here is her picture and the opening bars of marching song she has composed as typical of Massachusetts.

Massachusetts' Pride
MARCH AND ONE STEP
Beulah Kendall Doherty

BAY STATE HAS NEW ROMANCE IN THE LIFE OF HAWTHORNE

The impossible has happened. A successful march has at last been written with Massachusetts as the main theme.

Miss Beulah K. Doherty, of No. 141 Washington street, Roxbury, composed the "Massachusetts' Pride," it was believed impossible to put a successful song together without having the setting somewhere south of the Mason-Dixon line.

"Old Albion," "tossing," "Canaan," and "Virginia" for decades have been regarded by song writers as furnishing the only material that could be successfully put across as a "best seller" but Mrs. Doherty has proven that the Bay State's praises can be told in song just as well as can be extolled the wonders of Kentucky.

MUSICIAN OF NOTE

Mrs. Doherty is the wife of Charles Doherty and is the mother of two pretty daughters. She has lived in Boston for the past twenty years and is widely known as a musician and reader. Her "Massachusetts' Pride" met with instant success and is now being widely used on the stage and by hotel and concert orchestras.

"It was because this song has been delighted in the music world and the fact that many song writers about the South and other places never composed by persons who had never seen the place they sang about that urged me to write something about my own State," said Mrs. Doherty. "I knew the place and I believed that I could write about it better than any one else. Another thing I am surprised that my famous song writers have overlooked Massachusetts as a place to sing about and now I am going to give the folks a chance to whistle about their home State."

BOMB MADE HIT

"Massachusetts' Pride" made its appearance in music and song shops about three weeks ago. Little attention was paid to the composition until the Cecilia Theatre Orchestra played it at the theatre this week and later when the Boston American Orchestra broadcasted it over the radio from the Shepherd Street last Tuesday night.

Since then, according to owners of music song shops, the melody has been a great demand for the number.

Mrs. Doherty is well known in Greater Boston as a musician. She has been a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and is a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music. Her two daughters are now studying music there.

Mrs. Doherty says that her new composition was written during her spare time after her household duties had been completed each day.

SNOWTRACK SINGLE GIRLS

QUEEN MARY IS SAID TO HAVE CABLED TO SON TO SNUB DUCHESS, HERE NOW

BY MARGERY REW

The Prince of Wales may represent Romance to every girl who reads about him. He may look like the answer to the noted maiden's prayer. Or like Cinderella's means of egress from the kitchen. Or like the composite hero to that dwells in a girl's heart until she decides that it might be just as well to accept the young man with the terrible ears and the handsome prospects who has been calling for some months.

David Windsor may be all of that. He may suggest poetry. He may suggest a problem. Married women won't let him alone.

Many married women are sure of a more than partial answer to the question, "Why let the Prince of Wales come?" Only one, the Duchess of Westminster, must be named in this story. It is a story which Mary, who is the Duchess's daughter, has been told. She has been told that she might be asked for the trip and that she might be asked to accept the Prince of Wales. She has been told that she might be asked to accept the Prince of Wales.

THE PRINCE OF WALES

Girls who aspire to the hand of the Prince of Wales seem to encounter the same sort of competition as their more humble sisters. Married women, if current reports are to be believed, so occupy the time of the Prince with their attentions that single girls are crowded out by the Duke of Westminster, now in New York, is reported to have followed the Prince from London after her husband had forbidden her to make the trip. The Duchess's presence here is said to have alarmed those Mary that she called her son to have nothing to do with her. At top, two views of the beautiful Duchess.

2 SUSPECTS IN FIRES UNDER PROBE

Two fires of undetermined origin occurring early today are being investigated by City and State police. Incendiaries are suspected in both fires.

At 2 a. m. several families were forced to flee from a fire on the ground floor of the building at Nos. 69-71 Tremont street.

The Tremont Public Market, on the ground floor. The building was damaged to the extent of $10,000.

James J. Grady, assistant State fire marshal, and W. H. Connors, of the Bureau of Fire Prevention, received a tip that a fire was due to break out in the Tremont Public Market.

So they were on watch, and sure enough a blue smoke out of the market building at 11:30 o'clock last night. The firemen arrived, the fire prevention officials were on the job.

Both Grady and Connors said there was unmistakable evidence of incendiaries, and it was intimated that there would be arrests.

BABE RUTH SPEED BATTLE

The two largest as well as heaviest racing entries in the world will compete in a three-hat world at Boston today. "Babe" Ruth, a six-foot, six-inch, 225-pounder, will be the favorite to take the long end of the international match, the first of which will be staged at Meadowbrook, L. I., Tuesday.

The series was originally scheduled to start today, but rain caused postponement. The fact that the American four is composed of veterans is what gives them the edge on their British rivals. Devereux, the Yankee champion, is the veteran of the series. Milburn is playing his sixth international match. He is being counted on to give the home side a good start. The British four is made up of men who have won all the world titles in the past. They are George Chapman, Vincent Madonia, Gustav Gannay, Henri Waples, Charles Verkeyn, George Wiley and Sam Eastman. A tandem handicap race, which will show some of the best horses lined up, is also listed as a feature.

YOUNG STRIBLING HAS RECEIVED BIG PURSES
The Commercial A. C. has secured one of the best light heavyweight athletes in the world. Young Stribling, the sensational Sam, has been signed by the Commercial A. C. for the year 1924. Stribling is a wonderful attraction in every city. He is a powerful, well-built, and a hard-hitting fighter. He has won many big purses and has been a champion in many different weight classes.

SHARKEY'S DRAMATIC FINISH

Until other night Romero Rojas, the Spanish "Red Fighter," knocked out Jack Sharkey, the promising light heavy, in the eighth round. Jack Sharkey is not an Irishman as his moniker would lead you to believe, but a Lithuanian. Rojas knocked Sharkey as flat as a coat of paint just at the close of the eighth round, the referee counting "nine" as the bell clanged. Sharkey's seconds dragged him to his corner, gave him smelling salts, but his ears and finally poured a bucket of water over him in their attempt to bring him around.

Just as the bell sounded for the next round Sharkey opened his eyes. He was lifted to his feet and the game young fellow stepped out to fight on. He walked four or five feet and then fell flat on his face, unable to rise. It was the most dramatic finish to a fight ever seen in Boston. Unheard of Expressions. Devereux, the Yankee champion, is the veteran of the series. Milburn is playing his sixth international match. He is being counted on to give the home side a good start. The British four is made up of men who have won all the world titles in the past. They are George Chapman, Vincent Madonia, Gustav Gannay, Henri Waples, Charles Verkeyn, George Wiley and Sam Eastman. A tandem handicap race, which will show some of the best horses lined up, is also listed as a feature.

WEIR, STAR SOUTHWAY
J. Watson Webb, No. 1 and Mal Guinness, No. 2 are the favorites to win the match. Webb is a powerful, well-built, and a hard-hitting fighter. He has won many big purses and has been a champion in many different weight classes.

FARM EXHIBITS TO FEATURE N. E. WEEK

A group of organizations of fruit and farm produce growers in joining hands to make an exhibit of their products at the Horticultural Show during A.N. New England Week, September 15 to 26, and the committee is in hope of interesting other growers to make similar displays in other New England cities.

The Chamber of Commerce has donated the use of the third floor window space of its new building, corner of Federal and Franklin streets, for the display of the windows, three on Federal street, and two on Franklin street. It affords abundant opportunities for the display, and spectacular ones have been made.

The Nashua Fruit Producers' Association will have a large display, which will play a predominant part.

It is expected that the cranberries are coloring up in advance of a normal season, and there will be abundant quantities available for commercial exhibiting.

ON BRASS TACKS BASIS.

The Nashua "Home Growers' Exchange is going to put itself across this exhibition. It has three or four special agents now afield soliciting the growers to exhibit, and giving for the tubers best worthy to uphold the honor of the Pine Tree State.

The Nashua Horticultural Association will occupy its share of the window space with an interesting display of locally grown "vegetables," and the Hartford Garden Club, of which some of Greater Boston has often famous for many years.

What is of great significance to the horticulturists of the State is the project is going to put the right of the growers to have a voice in the land "Wool" movement on a "brass tack" basis, and to be able to have a committee anxious to see put in operation in a half dozen or more New England cities before the week of the 15th of September.

N. E. C. FOOD COSTS HIGH.

The committee urges that practical and successful men, both manufacturers and growers, should get to New England, get together and arrange some close displays to show the relation between the producer and retailer.

Student Needs Help
Helping Hand Editor:
I have registered as a male student, one of your Basic Institution and in grave need of financial help to see my way through. By working this Summer I have saved enough for my tuition, but I am short on how and where to live. I do not wish to ask for charity, but am willing to work hard to a solution.

May I suggest that if there is a reader who would take me into their home as a boarder, I will be most grateful. I have lost food I can make myself at most any kind of a price, and any kind of a car and I will do most anything to get a vehicle. I am a person that appreciates his kindness. I am a references to be character, honesty and ability if you are interested in my cause. I am a student in your father died two years ago.

ON THE AIR LAST NIGHT BY THE LISTENER

Judging by the multitude of regenerative equals on the air yesterday afternoon, most everybody in town must have been sampling on WEAP's wave waiting for some word of the Round the World flier, as according to advance newspaper information WEAP was to broadcast radioophone messages from the Hawaiian Army plane, Lieut. A. L. Rush was to give the radio audience direct information from the group of planes competing the westward journey. For some reason or other this program fell through, and the only thing left to do was to sit around and try to pick up Lieut. Rush's plane direct, I was fortunate in picking him up at 10:30 when he said he was flying around Nantux, Maine, on the edge of a fog bank, looking down sight of the world's striders.

The voice was quite clear considering the great difficulties he was obliged to work under. His wave was exactly on 210 meters, and could be distinguished by the steady hum, produced most likely by the Liberty motor in the plane. Lieut. Rush's interesting talks about the other airplanes in the soloing category, and as time wore on, he expressed the opinion that possibly they had missed the Round the World flier. Finally he tried to get word by message from the Charles G. Connors Yacht if the flier had arrived. Not being able to raise him, he broadcasted messages on his 210 meter wave, he broadcasted to the radio audience and asked if someone would phone one of the shore stations asking them to radio the required information by the shore stations. Finally at 11:10, Lieut. Rush's plane was flying over Nantux, on his way back to Boston, the Charles G. Connors Yacht was on station at Nantux when he told him that the Round the World flier had landed at Nantux Island, Maine. Lieut. Rush then flashed his message to the Charles G. Connors Yacht, and he then said he was through broadcasting, and was going to land.

This whole affair was most interesting, and was most encouraging to be listening to at the time, on 210 meters, were practically unable to make the trip with the welcoming audience, simply by closing their eyes, and listening to Lieut. Rush's interesting bulletin.

The General Electric Band, playing on of WEAP, furnished a very lively program, and the audience was coming through these nights with a punch that bids fair to outlive the radio stations for years to come.

I had him on the loudspeaker last night, using only two tubes.

The bad connection still is noticeable around 400 meters. Just to make sure the trouble was not in my own set last night, I listened for awhile on a superheterodyne, and found conditions exactly the same. The condition is further aggravated by one of the harmonics in NAD, the Charleston Navy Yard's wave, which comes in at about the same place.

Last night's reception was marred to some extent by sudden static crashes produced by the storm. Conditions were not bad enough, however, to seriously affect the evening's entertainment.

LAFAYETTE'S VISIT AND MARNE COMMEMORATED

Lafayette's visit to Boston 100 years ago and the Battle of Marne in 1918, of which today is the anniversary, were commemorated today on Boston Common. There formal exercises were held by the City of Boston.

The feature of the ceremony was the unveiling of a tablet on Lafayette Mall, marking the spot where Boston citizens of 1824 paid homage to the French soldier and gentleman for his aid in the fight of the colonies for freedom.

Master Paul J. Flannan, son of J. C. Flannan, French consul, unveiled the tablet, placed on a boulder. Mayor Curley then made an address.

VATICAN TO AID LEAGUE IN ESTABLISHING PEACE

Geneva, Sept. 5. (A.P.)—The establishment of diplomatic relations reciprocally between the Vatican and the League of Nations has been announced by the League of Nations.

The support of the Roman Catholic Church of peace and fraternity among the Nations was traditionally pointed out by the League was endorsed by many French, English and Belgian cardinals.

TROUBLE SOLOIST ON AIR AT WEAF TONIGHT

L. Clair Case will play several songs on a solo tonight on WEAF's radio station in New York City. Mr. Case formerly played with the Alexander Hall Orchestra in that city. He has given recitals in all the large theaters of New York.

He has written several compositions which will be featured in the program through WEAF this evening. Among the selections this evening are "Rhapsody" and "Wonderful Mother of Mine." "The Purple Tree," "Wandering Home,"
